

The outbuilding

After KONOE Fumimaro relocate the past tense to Tekigaiso, it was expanded in 1938. The outbuilding included a study (10 tatami mat size) for Konoe's eldest son, Fumitaka, and a room (6 tatami mat size) for Fumimaro's wife, Chiyoko. A plaque left in the attic reads, "Head of the family: Fumitaka Konoe."

KONOE Fumitaka went to war in 1940, and after the war, he was detained in Siberia, where he died. In the letter, he wrote to his family from Siberia, he expressed his desire to return to Tekigaiso after coming back to Japan.

The newspaper article reporting on the construction of the outbuilding
The Asahi Shimbun, April 15, 1938

The reverse side of the outbuilding plaque

The outbuilding (restored appearance)